funds, which leaves us in the limbo of undoing the funds and leaving the money in a checking account that we can't touch. I don't think that's likely. I think we've gotten to a place that is too arcane for words, and without meaning. That is not a relevant political scenario for any of us, and it's not going to happen.

SENATOR VRTISKA: One minute.

SENATOR LANDIS: So what about the constitution and protecting the language...the inviolability of the constitution? Well, here's our constitution: "The career politicians dominating Congress have a conflict of interest that prevents Congress from being what the founders intended, the branch of government closest to the people." This is in our constitution, by the way. "The politicians have refused to heed the will of the people for term limits; they have voted to dramatically raise their own pay;"--this is in the constitution that Senator Chambers thinks is above tomfoolery--"they have provided lavish million-dollar pensions for themselves;"--in the constitution that Senator Chambers is defending from tomfoolery. "The Legislature shall pass laws to correct abuses and prevent unjust discrimination and extortion in all charges of...telegraph and railroad companies. "The rolling stock and all other movable property belonging to any railroad company or corporation in this state,"...

SENATOR VRTISKA: Time, Senator Landis.

SENATOR LANDIS: Like a lot of other corporations are going to have rolling stock..."shall be liable to execution and sale in the same manner as the personal property of individuals."

SENATOR VRTISKA: Time, Senator Landis.

SENATOR LANDIS: Oh gosh, no. (Laughter)

SENATOR VRTISKA: I'm sorry, it is.

SENATOR LANDIS: I've got more.
